WALKING THE CORBETTS VOL 1 SOUTH OF THE GREAT GLEN

INFORMATION

This guidebook, one of a two-volume set, describes hikes up all 112 Corbetts (Scotland's 2500-2999ft mountains) south of the Great Glen. They provide fantastic walking and many are still little-climbed, with hardly any experience of crowds. Few of the routes in the guide involve scrambling, but there is challenge to be had on the many steep slopes. They can be climbed at any time of year but the going can be relatively tough and navigation demanding in mist and poor weather. The guide is not intended primarily for peak baggers, who want the shortest, easiest option, but rather for walkers who want the best, most interesting routes.

THE MAP

THE AUTHOR

Since taking early retirement from teaching, Brian Johnson has hiked the Pacific Crest Trail three times, completed a 2700-miles walk round Britain, hiked across the Pyrenees three times and completed a 2200-mile cycle tour of Spain and France. He has achieved a single summer compleation of the Munros and has climbed all of the Corbetts.
