

WALKING ON HARRIS AND LEWIS

30 Routes in the Outer Hebrides

INFORMATION

With high hills that sweep down to white sandy beaches caressed and, at times, buffeted by the Atlantic, Harris and Lewis offer one of the last remaining refuges for walkers looking for spectacular scenery, ancient monuments – and a break from the madding crowd.

Maps of the area show few footpaths, but this new guide describes 30 memorable walks ranging from all-day routes in the high hills to shorter, lower-level walks that visit the world-famous heritage sites and antiquities.

Routes include a high-level horseshoe around An Cliseam and its neighbours, half-day circular walks around the famous stone circles of Calanais and the Butt of Lewis lighthouse and detailed routes into areas of wilderness visited only by the Golden Eagle and the mountain hare.

With dramatic photographs, detailed OS mapping and frequent notes on places and points of interest, this is a book to inspire you and to take with you when you go.

THE MAP

THE AUTHOR

Richard Barrett spent his working life as a professional marketer, but still found time for climbing, winter mountaineering and sea kayaking. Having fallen in love with the Harris Hills in 2007, he is now set to relocate to M̀araig in North Harris, where he and his wife are building a guest house. This is his first book for Cicerone.
